

Office of Institutional Research

College Scorecard

INSTITUTIONAL RESEARCHERS:
Bridging the Gap Between Data and Decisions

The U. S. Department of Education makes federal data on the performance of U.S. institutions available to the public by using a scorecard. Their goal is to provide consumers with transparency as they make decisions about pursuing higher education. This data is collected from institutions primarily through the completion of IPEDS reports. Below is a table depicting the scorecard information for our college and two of its competitors, Fortis and Virginia College. As you can see from the table, at an average annual cost of $6,157, we offer the most affordable option for a quality education. For additional information, you can access the score card at <https://collegescorecard.ed.gov>.

Do you have an idea for a Friday Factoid? Hit reply and send me a message.

Click here to access Institutional Research Webpage

334.420.4243